For various reasons the editors of the Review have decided to discontinue the publication of the Porto Rico Review of Public Health and Tropical Medicine as a monthly issue with this number (June, 1929).

In the future this publication will appear under the name of "The Porto Rico Journal of Public Health and Tropical Medicine" and will be published quarterly (September, December, March and June) instead of monthly. Under the quarterly plan each number will comprise from 100 to 150 pages and it will be possible to include more articles and papers of greater length. Sections will be devoted to original manuscripts, news notes, statistics and abstracts of the current literature (particularly in tropical medicine). The general make-up of the new Journal will also be improved and it will be possible to more carefully select manuscripts and edit each number.

Under the new plan the Journal will next appear under the date of September, 1929. It will continue to be published as the official bulletin of the Department of Health of Porto Rico and the School of Tropical Medicine of the University of Porto Rico under the auspices of Columbia University.
